Goat's Milk.
Modern Medicine says that goat's milk, contrary to the general impression, differs from cow's milk not in being more digestible, but in being less digestible and less nutritious, although it contains a larger amount of solid matter than cow's milk. It is indeed the most indigestible of all milk.

Goat's milk has a peculiar and unpleasant odor and flavor, due to bircic acid or bircine. It contains an excess of fat and is therefore altogether too rich for an infant's diet.

WERE DEATH ON CORN.

The Doc Gives a Little Lesson In Natural History.

"There used to be an eccentric old character in our neighborhood," said a planter from one of the upper parishes, "who went by the name of Doc Johnson. He had never been 40 miles from the settlement in his life and was barely able to read and write, but he was naturally a sort of Jack of all trades, and somehow or other he acquired a tremendous reputation for sagacity."

"Whenever an argument arose among the country folks Doc Johnson was pretty certain to be called in to decide it, and as he would rather have died than to have admitted ignorance on any subject some of his statements of fact were amazing in the extreme."

"One day a farmer in the vicinity received a letter from his son, who had moved up to Iowa, saying, among other things, that the corn crop was looking bad and the country was being overrun by immigrants. The last word stumped the old man, and after puzzling in vain over its meaning he happened to see Doc and called him in. Johnson knew from the peculiar warmth of his greeting that he was going to be asked to solve some knotty problem and at once assumed the wisest air."

"Doc," said the farmer, pointing to the mysterious passage in the letter, "what in thunder does that boy mean by immigrants? What air they like, anyhow?"

"Johnson spelled through the paragraph, and, noting the reference to the bad corn crop, began rapidly to put two and two together."

"Immigrants!" he exclaimed to gain time. "Why, I thought everybody knewed what they was!"

"Air they critters?" asked the farmer cautiously.

"They is," replied the Doc, "a kind of er cross between a 'possum and a coon, and I'll tell you what," he added impressively—"they're jest simply death on corn!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

CANVASSERS

Counted the Votes

Cast by Members of Eighth Regiment.

Officers Will Abide by the Result.

Unofficial Count Elects Charlton Junior Major.

Leaving Critchfield Out in the Cold—Axline Notified.

The Board of Canvassers elected to count the ballots of the regimental election of the Eighth regiment, scheduled to meet at 12 o'clock at the Empire hotel, did not get together until after 2 o'clock.

Majors Vollrath and Weybrecht, Capt. Critchfield and other captains of the regiment arrived in the city early this morning. As stated in Saturday's DEMOCRAT, Adjutant General Axline was asked for an opinion as to the legality of the election.

Major Vollrath was told of this by a DEMOCRAT reporter. It is said he immediately telegraphed Axline not to give a decision until he learned the facts in the case. This it is believed delayed the work of the Board of Canvassers.
